Solutions: Initial Phase National Movements

1. Correct Answer: (a)

Statement 1 is correct: Sakharam Ganesh Deuskar was a Marathi Brahmin and a close associate of Aurobindo Ghosh. He published a book entitled 'Desher Katha' describing in exhaustive detail the British commercial and industrial exploitation of India. He warned against the colonial state's "hypnotic capture of the mind" in his work Desher Katha.

Statement 2 is correct: This book seems to have had an enormous influence on the young men of Bengal and turned many of them into revolutionaries and prepared them for the Swadeshi movement. This book had immense repercussions in Bengal, captured the mind of young Bengal and assisted more than anything else in the preparation of the Swadeshi movement and inspired the performance of swadeshi street plays and folk songs.

Statement 3 is incorrect: Desher Katha gave an overwhelming detail of the sordid story of foreign exploration leading to India's economic servitude and was not just in the specific context of Bengal.

Sakharam Ganesh Deuskar was the first to bring in the name of Swaraj, and Sri Aurobindo was the first to endow it with its English equivalent, 'Independence.' The Nationalists adopted this word, and Swaraj became the chief item of the fourfold Nationalist or Pan-India programme.

2. Correct Answer: (a)

Option (a) is correct: The Vital-Vidhvansak, (Destroyer of Brahmanical or Ceremonial Pollution) the first monthly journal to have the untouchable people as its target audience was published by G.B. Walangkar. He was the first to fight for the rights of the Mahars in Maharashtra. He retired from military service in 1886 and mobilized people and made them conscious about their human rights. He highlighted the grievances of the people through his writings in two Marathi newspapers, Dinbandhu and Sudharak, in which he argued that casteism and untouchability had no religious base and were creations of the Hindus. To prove his theory he wrote a booklet titled "Vital Vidhvansak".

3. Correct Answer: (b)

Option (b) is correct: Rukhmabai was one of the first Indian women to practice medicine in colonial India. The Right of consent is attributed to Rukhmabai refusing to recognise her marriage and the case filed by her husband thereafter.

- Rukhmabai refused to move in with her husband stating that a woman cannot be compelled to stay in wedlock when she is not interested and her husband Bhikaji sought "restitution of conjugal rights".

- The Dadaji vs. Rukhmabai case that went on for three years triggered a debate in both England and India. The verdict went in favour of Dadaji. The court ordered Rukhmabai to live with her husband or face six months imprisonment. Rukhmabai said she was willing to opt for the latter.

- The verdict was subsequently overruled by Queen Victoria. This prompted the government to bring the Age of Consent Act, of 1891, despite opposition from conservative Indians and restitution of conjugal rights, which allows a spouse to move the court to compel the other spouse to cohabit or face forfeiture of any property.

4. Correct Answer: (b)

Option (b) is correct: India lacked basic industries such as steel, metallurgy, machine, chemical, and oil and also lagged behind in the development of electric power. The invention of synthetic dye gave a big blow to the indigo industry and it gradually declined. The industries were almost exclusively European in ownership and Indigo was used as a dye in textile manufacture. Indigo manufacture was introduced in India at the end of the 18th century and flourished in Bengal and Bihar. Indigo planters gained notoriety for their oppression over the peasants who were compelled by them to cultivate indigo. This oppression was vividly portrayed by the famous Bengali writer Dinbandhu Mitra in his play Neel Darpan in 1860.

5. Correct Answer: (d)

Option (d) is correct: In 1800, Wellesley, the governor-general from 1798-1805 set up the Fort William College for the training of civil servants of the Company in the languages and customs of Indians (closed in 1802). Governor General Wellesley was an expansionist. In order to accomplish this, he pursued a policy of conquest and annexation of Indian states. To expand British territory, he adopted a new expansion policy known as Subsidiary Alliance.

- The Ulgulan uprising(1899-1900) was supported by Birsa Munda against the introduction of feudal, zamindari tenures and exploitation by moneylenders and forest contractors.
