Mains Practical Questions

Ques 1. A person entitled to the possession of Specific immovable property may recover it in the manner provided by Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. Explain with the help of Specific Relief Act.

Recovery of specific immovable property is under Section 5 of Specific Relief Act, 1963. When a person is entitled to the possession of specific immovable property, he can recover the same by filing a suit as provided in CPC, 1908. He may file a suit for ejectment on the basis of the strength of his title and get a decree for ejectment. Then he may execute the decree in accordance with the provisions of CPC. He cannot take the law in his own hands and obtain possession of his property by force, even though he is entitled to the same. It is a well settled principle of law that a person, who has been in a long continuous possession of the immovable property, can protect the same by seeking an injunction against any person in the world other than the true owner. It is also a settled principle of law that owner of the property can get back his possession only by resorting to due process of law. It states that a suit for possession must be filed having regard to the provision of the Code of Civil Procedure.

For ex., if 'A' agrees to convey some specific immovable property to 'B' and also handover the possession, 'B' can file a suit against 'A' requiring him to fulfil the promise and handover the possession.

In the case of "East India Hotels Ltd. Vs Syndicate Bank", the essence of this section is "title", i.e., the person who is entitled to the possession. The title may be of own or another. If 'X' enters into peaceful possession of land claiming title, and 'Y' has no title, still he has the right to sue another person who has no title from possession because he might have no legal title.

From the aforementioned facts, it also comes to the notice of the court that the specified part of the property in question is the subject matter of the question.

Ques 2. Write long note on jurisdiction of civil courts.

Jurisdiction of civil courts is defined as the limit of judicial authority or extent to which a court of law can exercise its authority over suits of civil nature. There are two basic principles of jurisdiction, firstly, "principle of kompetenz" it means that civil court itself has the competency to decide its own competency and secondly is "grant of jurisdiction to any court is a legislative function". By virtue of both these principles a court is empowered to provide a civil court has jurisdiction. Section 9 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that every suit shall be instituted in the court of the lowest grade competent to try it.

Pecuniary jurisdiction, the word "pecuniary" related to money. So, pecuniary jurisdiction refers to the power of court to decide suits that are within its monetary limits. Section 6 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that every court has its pecuniary limit. The court cannot decide or hear suits the subject matter of which exceeds the pecuniary limit, however decree passed without pecuniary jurisdiction is valid but irregular. As per section 15 of the said Code provides that every suit shall be instituted in the court of the lowest grade competent to try it.

Territorial jurisdiction, under this territorial or local jurisdiction, the geographical limits of a court's authority are clearly specified. Every court has its own local or territorial limits beyond which it cannot exercise its jurisdiction. These limits are fixed by the government. The district judge has to exercise jurisdiction within his district and not outside it. The High Court has jurisdiction over the territory of a state within which it is situated and not beyond it. A court has no jurisdiction to try a suit for immovable property situated beyond its local limits.

Subject matter jurisdiction, the subject matter can be defined as the authority vested in a court to understand and try cases concerning a special type of subject matter. In other words, it means that some courts are banned from hearing cases of a certain nature.

Handwritten Notes

Jurisdiction of Civil Courts

Jurisdiction - Competency

Law 202 Basic principles of jurisdiction - Competency

Principle of Competency - Competency
This principle says that the court itself has the competency to decide its own competency.

Example - A v B in Court X

A files suit against B in Court X
B says that this suit is beyond the competency of this court. This has to be maintained before the court is dismissed.

Now the question arises as to who will decide whether the suit is maintainable before this court or not? or who will decide - whether the court has jurisdiction to try such suit? or the court itself will decide its own competency.

Grant of Jurisdiction/competency is a statutory function.
Legislation grants jurisdiction to any court to decide whether it can try such suit or not.
Law confers jurisdiction.

Q1. Can parties by mutual agreement/consent/acquiescence grant jurisdiction to a court?
Ans - No, the parties cannot do so.

Example A and B

* There is a dispute between parties A and B.
They decide among themselves to file suit in Court X.

* Both A & B with mutual consent file suit in Court X.
Does this mean that Court X will get the jurisdiction to try the suit?

No.
As the parties cannot grant jurisdiction to any court, neither can the parties take away jurisdiction of any court because this will be against the public policy of sec 23 of the Indian Contract Act. Such type of agreement will be void.
